

Beef Commission in Manitoba

Winnipeg, July 31.—J. B. Lauson, M.P., for Iagavandry, was one of the witnesses before the beef commission and gave much interesting evidence regarding the conditions in this city. During the course of his evidence he several times accused the council of incompetence and asserted that he believed there were methods by which men with a will could obtain what they wanted.

He stated that the mayor was too much engrossed with his own business and store to look into the various questions arising out of the local butcher trade. Mr. Lauson stated that there was discrimination made everywhere against the small man in favor of the big dealer in the city, by laws of the local magistrates and by the C.P.L., which gave such a rebate on carcasses shipped to Montreal to the big dealers that he could make several hundred dollars on a hundred head of cattle, while the small men would get a large loss.

The witness advocated very strongly a public slaughter house and a public market, as the only remedy for existing conditions in Manitoba.

Liberals Will Not Run a Candidate

Vancouver, B. C., July 31.—At a meeting of the Liberal association last night it was agreed that no party should be taken in the by-election now pending in consequence of Mr. Lauson's elevation to the provincial cabinet. However headed the poll at the last provincial election. A resolution, ostensibly signed by the association, was presented to J. B. Martin, K. C., asking him to come out as an independent candidate. Mr. MacPherson, addressing the association, made a strong speech on the Japanese question. He said that he had been subjected to a great deal of abuse by Eastern papers and had been called a meddling with important business, but he would not be abused he meant to keep up the fight. A committee was appointed to back up Mr. MacPherson's attitude on the question.

They were checked, checked, herded and guarded by eighteen missionaries, as associates of Brigham Young, are with them. The agents have found it possible to unload shipload after shipload of Mormon recruits at this port without attracting public attention. No fewer than twelve steamships have come in since June 1st last bearing parties of new Mormons. The new show twelve hundred arrivals in seven months.

Will Return to Work

Duluth, Minn., July 31.—The ore dock workers who have been on strike for recognition of the union and a raise in pay, voted to return to work. Neither of the issues raised by the men were granted by the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern railroad, and the men will return to work tomorrow morning. Their status will be the same as it was the day they voted to strike. All office employees will be taken back by the company without prejudice and the pay they have been receiving under a verbal agreement with the company, which would not have expired until October 31, next, will continue. The strike lasted about two and one-half weeks and was entirely free from any disorder whatever. There were numerous conferences of the strikers and at three of them a letter setting forth the position of the company was read. The last was delivered to the men this morning. The railroad officials adopted a policy in this final letter stating they were willing to treat with their men individually but the committee on open shop basis and the men really did not want unless they accepted the terms offered by the company they would not be able to get back their old jobs, voted to return to work.

The discussion over the letter was a long one, lasting over two hours. The news of the ending of the dock strike was flashed to Eveleth, Hibbing and Newnam, the three steam centres of the mining region, where trouble might originate and the news was received there with rejoicing. Everything at these points was reported quiet.

Fell 180 feet, Still Alive

Quebec, July 31.—To fall 180 feet and live was the remarkable experience of Joseph Grau, an old country Frenchman who has been resident in Quebec for three months past. Grau was visiting the Quebec bridge and walked out to the end of the superstructure. In turning to retrace his steps he missed his footing and fell from the disjunct beam into the water below. He landed on his side with terrific force but was quickly extricated and a doctor summoned, when it was found that the liver and spleen injuries was a fractured rib. He was placed in the Hotel Dieu where he is now resting comfortably.

SPORTS

Baseball.

Three Straights for Capitals
On the Edmonton grounds last night the home team rubbed it into Lethbridge worse than ever, running up a score of eleven to one. The winners showed great form in every department of the game. Bixler, who did the pitching, showed perfect control, striking out six and only walking two. The hitting was excellent, only two errors being chalked up, and some brilliant batting was seen. Morrison pitched for the southerners, and pitched a better game than the score against him would indicate.

JIMMY BRITT BEAT BATTLING NELSON

San Francisco, July 31.—Jimmy Britt tonight got decision over Battling Nelson in the final round of a 20 round fight at 135 pounds. The fight was a very close one, but it was one of the best fights ever witnessed on the Pacific coast, the men going at it hammer and tongs from start to finish. Britt had slightly the best of it all through, but was particularly aggressive towards the last.

Riot is Rampant in Belfast

Belfast, July 31.—Troops continued to pour into the city emphasizing the fact that the authorities are fully determined to grapple promptly with the rioting, whether on the part of the striking dock laborers or the mutinous police, who are demanding more pay because of the extra work the strike entails. The fourth battalion of the Middlesex regiment arrived today, bringing a Maxim gun. A section of the Essex regiment will be sent to the city tomorrow, making the military strength about 7,000 men. The police have received communications from numerous stations throughout the country, expressing sympathy with their movement and declaring in many cases a willingness on the part of the writers to lay down their arms and strike at a moment's notice when like action is taken in Belfast.

Morse is Satisfied With Progress

Winnipeg, July 31.—Frank W. Morse, vice-president and general manager of the G.P.P., arrived in the city today from the west. Mr. Morse said: "Everything is progressing most favorably in the west and good progress is everywhere being made in the construction of the line. This includes grading, which is in progress east from Fortage La Prairie and the construction of the line east from Saskatoon. Work on abutments and piers of the bridge over the South Saskatchewan at Saskatoon is approaching completion. All of the concrete work will be completed, according to the present expectation, within thirty days. The work of laying the steel will then proceed with at once. Preparations are also being made for the laying of the track east from Saskatoon."

"Grading operations are being carried forward vigorously at Clover Bar, near the crossing of the North Saskatchewan on the way into Edmonton. Good progress is also being made at this point on the abutments and piers of the bridge across the North Saskatchewan. One of the four piers of this bridge has been completed. This pier is the largest pier of concrete in the Dominion. When all the piers on this bridge have been completed, they will constitute the most massive aggregation of concrete on any bridge in Canada."

"The line of rail has been completed into River, the first terminal point west of Winnipeg, just beyond the point of crossing the Little Saskatchewan. At this point there is being erected an eighteen stall engine house and shop for which the contract was awarded to the J. M. Diarmid Company of this city."

At the Last Hour

Toronto, July 31.—The death sentence to have been executed on Frank Capelle at Port Arthur tomorrow morning was postponed until August 16 by order of Judge Britton at last moment. This is the first time such an order has been granted by a judge who did not try the case. The application was made by G. A. Moss, agent for P. P. Theodor, of Port Arthur, counsel for prisoner. Capelle was found guilty at the last jury session of the murder of Lowell and was sentenced by Judge Tootel to be hanged August 1. Special messenger, Hugh Hoyle, was immediately dispatched to Port Arthur with the order of postponement.

The ground on which Keefe stated his application was that he could produce evidence as to the prisoner's mental condition not heard at the trial when Capelle was sentenced, which he claims would change the verdict of any jury from murder to manslaughter.

Heiress of Neil Brodie Found

(Special to the Chronicle)
Montreal, Aug. 1.—An heiress has been found for the estate of Neil Brodie, who died recently a miser and amidst awful surroundings. The heiress will not get so much as was at first thought, as the deceased man's wealth was greatly overestimated. It is now said that not more than $4000 will be left when the estate is wound up. The heiress is a daughter of Brodie's brother, and resides in Glasgow, Scotland.

Ran Over a Girl

Paris, July 31.—H. Deutsch de la Meurthe, the well known automobilist, today ran over and killed a girl at a street crossing in this city. H. Deutsch de la Meurthe is well known through Europe as a patron of sport, the Deutsch prize having first inspired Santos Dumont to enrich the world with a dirigible balloon, and the Deutsch archedrone prize being the present incentive to experiments with flying machines.

Knight Scored by Judge

Vancouver, B. C., July 31.—This afternoon, after an absence of 40 minutes, the jury in the case of Green vs. the World found for the defendants with costs. "I find it difficult to choose language sufficiently strong to characterize such an action," said Judge Clements this morning in referring to a letter written by Sir Adolphe Caron to R. F. Green, then commissioner of land and works in the McBride government, in which the former mentioned certain shares which he would place at the disposal of any person named by Green. "Such a man should have been a man of high character, stripped from all," he said. The libel charge arose on account of an article in the World on the transaction referred to. The Judge's charge was of considerable length. He told the jury that if any statement in the article had to be proved they should find for the plaintiff.

A Victory for the People

Toronto, July 31.—"A victory for the people," is what the World calls the Railway Commission's two-mile order. It says in particular: "Justice may move with tardiness, but she does arrive. The order by the Railway Commission, calling upon the Grand Trunk railway to furnish third class service for the carriage of passengers at the maximum rate of two cents a mile, may produce no immediate effect, because the usual appeals and legal delays are to be taken for granting today was a victory for the people. It establishes that the most powerful corporations cannot obey a law, and it gives notice upon the people and corporations alike that the railway board will not be trifled with."

CURRENT COMMENT.

We made a promise that yesterday's editorial should be devoted to fraternity. There were many strangers in the city who naturally carried away a copy of The Chronicle as a souvenir of their visit. Tuesday's editorial was devoted to a tribute to one who was in many regards Canada's most brilliant and honorable son. The issue containing that editorial was destined to be placed under the corner stone of the Oddfellows' building. It was our latest issue. The application of the term Carpet Bagger comes with bad grace from this itinerant Child of Charity, whose emulated makeup is a constant reminder of its dependence for existence on the crumbs that fall from alien tables.

We were born on Canadian soil and have never lived a year beyond its boundaries. We never forewent our allegiance to the flag that floats over this Dominion. We were never starved out of Dakota or any other state in the United States. We all have had three square meals a day because we earned them and did not have to wait till somebody tossed them over the fence. We never sucked the dregs of a besotted syphonizer. We have been here but a short time but during that time we have not found it either necessary or expedient to conduct a business in any one else's name, so that in the event of our failure we might beat our creditors. We do not do the chores of our cowardly coyotes that have more brains but less manliness than the publishers of the sheet on Tuesday.

The Plaindealer is an excrement on Strathcona's business list.

MORE PLAINTS FROM A PLAIN-DEALER.

"Irresponsible and blustering editor of The Chronicle." Blustering is good.

"It is a reflection on the intelligence and manliness of every merchant in the city who has a child and gets his mail in the general delivery." Why? Why should out a merchant get his mail out of the post office without having to pay tribute to the postmaster for a box, the rent of which goes into his pocket? The Plaindealer puts the word girl in quotation marks for the purpose of making an insinuation. The girl referred to is employed by the merchant as the girl in the post office are employed to the postmaster. And we may say for the benefit of the man who has the veiled sneer when referring to her that she is as respectable as his mother, or his wife, or his sister or any girl in the post office and infinitely more so than he himself.

"We are forced to the conclusion," etc. In the "we" on this occasion there is probably included the little Coterie of Collaborationists, whose combined talents brought forth that gem of Christian charity, brotherly love and pious exhortation in Tuesday's Plaindealer. The editor ought to write his own copy and run his own paper. This custom of throwing others' mud, while it may bring more graft or repay the obligation for what has already been enjoyed, has a tendency to make me wonder whether the man with the little pen and the big Bible are one and the same.

"One John May is a subscriber to The Chronicle, the other, happy soul is not, and the paper was being delivered to the wrong May, and the 'happy soul' appreciated it so highly probably in comparison with the fly specked Plaindealer that no one can read, that he kept it and didn't return it to the rightful owner—a habit no doubt formed from long previous reading of the pap fed periodicals.

"Letters are not usually placed in such sacks, but in lock bags." We do not know what is "usually" done in the Strathcona post office with letters, but we do know that the letter was taken out of the bag and returned to the office and the story was not any more concocted than was the one about the Mitchell paper which we returned, or the Lodge letter which this Plain Dealer has not yet "concocted" an explanation for.

"It is evidently the purpose of the Chronicle to persecute Postmaster Thompson." That statement in the face of remarks printed in another column of the Plaindealer and quoted in this journal shows its regard for the truth in a clear light. We will not persecute Postmaster Thompson, but we will be forced if his effeminate champion persists in trying to make black appear white to keep adding "incidents in the daily life of a postmaster" to the interesting collection already published, and will continue to criticize any public man or institution as forcefully and as frequently as we please.

We never knew before that the local post office was under the city council. Mr. Blain is not any more in the post office and we have no criticism of him to make nor will we believe that all the bungling in the post office can be blamed on him. We know better.

"Smart Aleck editors whose delight is to slander some member of the Liberal party." The Liberal party has more need to cry for deliverance from its "friends" in the persons of repatriated book agents who become owners of paid fly sheets than from the "Smart Aleck" editors referred to.

A little wholesome criticism might improve the party as it has improved the post office.

The Plaindealer ought to be a little more generous. It got a special feed of pap recently that the Bulletin didn't want or couldn't handle. Besides the continuous run of homestead regulations. Surely the secretary ought to be allowed just a little. The secretary doesn't draw $1,000 until a year has elapsed. He has been here four months and it was worth the money he has been paid to have him drive the Plaindealer man to quit the Board in a huff.

"For all the use the building has been to the city along the line it tended its cost might much better have been expended on the city streets or in keeping down the bank overdraft." The city did not build the building. It was built by private subscription, belongs to the Board and the secretary does not intend to carry it away in his carpet bag.

"The journalistic prostitute." Fancy that in the Plaindealer. Shocking! And, as might be expected of an hermaphrodite it mixes its sexes. This man never claimed to have had anything to do with "making Saskatoon" or with the prosperity of the city of Hamilton, and has only made a fool of one member of the Board of Trade, and that the man who quit in 1906, when he couldn't run the show himself as he had been accustomed to.

The secretary has not made a corpse of a board composed of such timber. No man could kill that which was already dead. It was in "former years" when some one was doing the "journalistic prostitute" work that the boxing hall was located in Edmonton on account of the cool and insolent reception the owners got here.

And talking of politics, the last statement we have from the treasurer shows that of 66 members on the roll whose fees for 1907 were due in February last, before the secretary came, fourteen have paid up, and of that fourteen, twelve are Conservatives and two are Liberals. In justice to be said that the publisher of the Plaindealer is one of the two, so that while the secretary may admit making a fool of one of the members, the providing of the corpse belongs to where. The secretary never covenanted to devote his whole time to the work of the Board, and as we told the Plaindealer once before, he is better engaged in getting out a newspaper that people can read and like to read than sitting idly in an office waiting for some one to come along and ask a question. It is fortunate too, that he can be found by calling up 61, it saves many people a walk these hot days. This graft, as the Plaindealer calls it, seems to be the only one any Conservative is enjoying in this province just now, and we have no doubt that we could hear of its objections by changing our politics, but we want. We enjoy its feeble opposition too much.

Nobody Works

But the Seven Sutherland Sisters' Hair Grower and it works wonders on the hair of nearly every girl. It works out the germs that causes baldness and cures them. H. Duncan, special agent.

CHRONOS.

If the Plaindealer desires a chance to show how consistent it can be in regard to men occupying public office and making money on the side let us recommend the following to its notice: On March 6, Mr. Northrop, of East Hastings, brought up the case of an Immigration Commissioner at Winnipeg, salary $3,000, who had carried through a land deal giving him some $30,000 profit and had been sued successfully on the claim that he had deceived the purchasers. In his own testimony at this hearing the officer confessed that he had made use of the services and reports of other Government officers in order that he himself "might make money on the side."

One of these reports received by the Commissioner officially had been carried off bodily by his land customers leaving no copy in the office. On a straight party vote the conduct of this officer was endorsed by a Government majority of 94 to 51.

We have been charged with the rankest kind of partisanship. Well, if the charge were true, which it is not, we can at least claim that we are not putting forth our views for the pet or pet theory there is in it. The subsidized organs are all on the other side.

On Saturday morning a business man in the city got a card in his box at the post office that was not addressed to him and did not belong to him. It was returned and an explanation made. In the afternoon it was in his box again. It was returned and the circumstance was once more explained. On Monday morning it was back again large as life in his box. He returned it once more and explained the circumstance with some vigor and plainness of speech.

The Plaindealer was not telling quite the whole truth when it said there were two persons the name of John May getting mail at the post office. The "happy soul" to which the paper refers is John Q. May. Plain John May, has not received a letter for six weeks although he has reason to believe some have been written to him. Surely there ought to be some sense of discrimination in cases of this kind.

Some time since a business man in this city should have received a letter sent from a point down the river. The letter was put in the mail of a lumberman operating nearly a hundred miles up the river. Some weeks afterwards he was in the city and meeting the owner of the letter said he had it but forgot to bring it down but would do so. When the rightful owner received it he wrote the writer explaining the situation, but it was too late and he lost the business. Private concerns are responsible for their agents, why not the government? We think this man has a good claim against it. It has lost through the incompetency or carelessness, which the Plaindealer says does not exist of a post office clerk.

The Plaindealer gasoline engine gave out on Tuesday and refused to proceed for some hours. Even it balked on being a party to the false statements contained in that day's issue.

Talk about graft!—The Plaindealer says it'll become the imported carpet bagger, who draws $3,000 from the Strathcona Board of Trade to talk to the Plaindealer (being paid).

It is singular how mad these little papers do get when they are placed in the right column as pap feeders and tax eaters.

Take your best girl to the larches late to-morrow evening.

Strathcona Miners on Strike

Trouble at Strathcona Coal Company's Mine.

There is trouble on at the Strathcona Coal Company's mine, and the men are not working today. The trouble has been brewing for some time but the immediate cause of the men quitting was the refusal of the boss to allow one of the men, go down to work because he was a few minutes late. There is a question of an advance in wages and several other matters the men say they have been considering for some time and the trifling difficulty this morning brought things to a head. There is to be a conference between the owners and the men tomorrow, which it is hoped will result in a satisfactory agreement. H. however, the demands of the men are not met they threaten to quit.

"But the trouble with being rich is that you never know whether any one is in love with you or not," murmured Mayhorne, stretching out a dainty slipper foot to the fender, where a bright fire glowed.

Her father's eyes twinkled. "I think I have heard that phrase before, my dear," he said kindly, "and, while I acknowledge that your fortune is a good deal of a lure, I must confess that if I were a young man just the sight of your eyes and the sound of your voice would be enough for me."

Rosamond shook her head. "You see, father, you were an exceptional young man," she said, but the look in her eyes was troubled, and a faint pucker showed between her brows. Her father leaned forward and patted the slim young hand that lay on the carved arm of the chair. His mother's daughter was very dear to him.

"What's gone wrong, Rosamond?" he queried. "Is the new Worth gown a failure, or didn't you enjoy your dance last night, or is the world generally stuffed with sadness?"

"It isn't the world that's stuffed with sadness; it's the men!" cried Rosamond.

Her father laughed outright, and Rosamond frowned at him with delicate severity.

"Ah, you may laugh," she said, "but I'm in earnest just the same. I'm sick of all men I see at balls and operas. I don't want a puppet in evening dress to talk to. I want a man—a man who works and thinks and feels—in this silly world which hasn't been able to find one. Besides, there's not one of them that's not a fortune hunter, from Tony Laganan to George Astorville. The fact is, I'm beginning to tire of utterly vain days and a pleasure seeking existence."

"What do you intend to do, then?" "I propose to work for my living."

"Seriously, Rosamond?"

"Doesn't this look serious?" She drew from the floor beside her a writing pad, covered with calligraphic signs.

"Shorthand, as I live!" ejaculated her father. "Well, Rosamond, I've always let you have your own way, but if you want to make an experiment on me, I won't hinder you. I suppose in a month or two you'll be applying for a situation in my office."

"Nothing of the kind!" she flashed. "I'll find a situation of my own. I'll come to be Rosamond Mayhorne. Tomorrow morning I'll be Rosamond Marsh, and if you expect to catch a glimpse of me you'll have to be up early, for I'm off to my business college at 8 o'clock."

There followed days when Rosamond was utterly fatigued and disheartened. Many a time she hovered on the verge of giving up her course and going back to her butterfly existence, but the same vital energy that made her father a power in Wall street was latent in her, too, and she stuck it out courageously, though often the penitential tears again before her eyes, her back ached, and her fingers almost refused to "click" at the type of her machine.

To a girl accustomed to walking at 10 in the morning it was no small wonder to put back the hands of the clock, at 7 a. m. as a rising hour and instead of luncheon in a well appointed dining room to scurry to a restaurant for a hurried midday meal.

"My, isn't it fine to think that our course is nearly finished!" sighed Matty Brown, a trim girl in black, busy engaged in putting on her hat before a small mirror which hung in the cloakroom. "I suppose we'll be hunting for work next. Wonder if we'll soon get any?"

"I hope so," said Rosamond soberly. The hundreds and hundreds of toilers whom she named in the street each night after the 6 o'clock whistles blew had given her a very different view of life from that which she had cherished in her broadened boudoir. She knew now that it was composed of infinitesimal struggle and hardship, and it was with a thrill of thankfulness that she found herself engaged from dawn to dusk applying for the stenographer's post.

fecting than the occasion suggested. His shrewd eye scrutinized the speaker not only in his frank and genial manner, but in every direct glance of his steady gray eyes, every motion of his well poised head.

"Tired," said Rufus Mayhorne a few months later, looking at the speaker across the dinner table that sparkled with silver and cut glass.

"Not a bit," she answered cheerfully.

"And you still like your employer?" "He seems," said Rosamond demurely, "to be a very just and reasonable sort of person."

"The people who know him say fine things of him," returned her father. "I should judge that he was composed of brain and muscle rather than of saw-dust."

One evening after office hours, as Rosamond was walking home, Graham Ellis joined her. He had played so long on the dangerous side of discovery, that she had become accustomed to it, but on this particular night his sudden presence startled her, and to gain time she turned into a shabby side street. A girl was just disappearing into one of the dingy doorways. It was Matty Brown. Instantly Rosamond saw a way of escape.

"Good night," she said, pausing and abruptly holding out her hand to Graham Ellis.

"You live here?" he interrogated. A little demon of mischief looked out of Rosamond's brown eyes.

"Why not?" she queried lightly, already halfway up the steps.

"May I come and see you some time when you're not too tired or busy?" he asked.

"I should be delighted," smiled Rosamond, and then slipped into the dingy lighted hall, where the figure of Matty Brown was already receding. Here she waited till she knew that Graham Ellis had passed on, then went out again, heaved her coat and bag, and disappeared over a small triumph. Poor and dismal and dingy though the place was, he had caught enough to make her see her in it, while the men she was accustomed to meet in the drawing rooms of her friends would have sneered and passed on.

"I must have made a mistake in the number, Miss Marsh," he said to her the following week. "Was it 15 or 17? I rang at several doors, but no one seemed to know your name."

"We've moved," said Rosamond calmly. "Oh, I see," said Graham Ellis. There was a long pause. "Of course," he began rather stily—"of course if you don't care to have me call."

Rosamond bent over her machine. "I don't know when you've seen where I live if you'll like it," she murmured, and Ellis was too much in earnest to note the catch of amusement in her tone.

"Like it?" he cried. "Of course I'll like it. Do you think it makes any difference to me where you live? Surely we can't have worked together all these months without your knowing that I love you!"

"Ah," said Rosamond, with a ripple of whimsical laughter, "then if nothing makes any difference, you won't mind my being Rufus Mayhorne's daughter instead of Rosamond Marsh, for you know, there was once an applicant who set out with a lantern to look for a honest man; but, since I'm a modern, I've used a typewriter instead. And he led me straight to you!"

"To a man with nothing on earth to offer you but love!"

"Well, isn't that the greatest thing in the world?" she whispered, flushing deliciously.

Her References.

Not long ago a Philadelphia lady was suddenly despatched by the coach and advertised for another, stipulating that applicants be furnished good references. A middle aged colored woman was among those who sought the place, and when asked for her references she said, "Dead, Ah done told you references, lady." "Dead?" you know," the lady asked, "that if you don't bring any references with you people will suspect that you are not a good servant?" I am surprised that you should destroy the references of a former employer who was kind enough to give you. "Assume maybe dat so," the applicant replied. "Folks can suspect Ah ain't no good servant, but you know Ah was crazy Ah'd bring references."—Philadelphia Record.

Very Useful.

"It's a very good horse, but this," remarked the dealer who was trying to sell the animal, "I sometimes have to tie a knot in his tail to prevent him from slipping through his collar. But that's no matter. Occasionally, too, he has to bring a stick over him to keep the hay inside of him from getting so burned. He's a good horse, but this, my wife and her mother took him for a drive the other day, and they had only let him trot. When he started the rattling of his bones so started him that he bolted, pitched my wife and mother-in-law out and killed a old woman. Oh, he's a good horse if true, but he's very useful."—Liverpool Mercury.

Two Reasons Why.

A government official recently returned to Washington after an absence of some years abroad. He met an old friend who had been interested in oiling machines and asked:

"Well, professor, how are you getting along with your aerial work?" "It is not yet a complete success," the professor said, with a sad smile. "I have two things to accomplish before I can say that it is."

"What are they?" "I must discover how to get my kite in the air and then how to keep it there." Success.

SAVE THE FORESTS

(New Orleans Times-Democrat)

Aside from those interested in the taking care of the public lands there is a strong sentiment in favor supporting the President and saving our forests. Unless something is done in this matter we shall soon see the end of our lumber resources, with the very worst results not only to the many industries which depend mainly upon wood as their chief material, but upon climate and productivity as well.

Never before has there been such wanton waste of timber as we of America are guilty of today. We are cutting down three times as much as we are growing, using six times as much wood per capita as is used in Europe.

After the Eastern and Western States had wasted their valuable forest wealth, it was thought that the South, which had bulk of the remaining merchantable lumber, would be more careful and sparing; but experience seems to go for nothing in this matter, and the South is today cutting down its pine, oak and cypress as rapidly as Michigan did.

In the twenty-six years up to 1907 the fourteen Southern States produced 235,147,000,000 feet of lumber, or nearly one-third of the total. Today the South has reached its maximum of production, and it is continues at its present figure in great measure as treeless as portions of the East.

At present about one-fifth of the total forest area is still embraced in national forests; the other four-fifths have already passed into private hands. The question is now as to the preservation of these lands, and the extension of Federal and State ownership as rapidly as possible.

Save our forests as we remain the President in this matter.

The lacrosse boys want to see you at the exhibition grounds to-morrow night.

It is expected that Judge Scott will render his decision in the Macaulay case tomorrow.

The annual picnic of the Presbyterian Sunday School is being held this afternoon at the exhibition grounds.

T. Torsen, the manager for Brack-man-Ker at Wetskiwin, was a visitor in the city yesterday looking as large and well as usual.

We are informed today that a start has been made cutting the weeds and grass on the city streets as recommended in these columns lately.

The Strathcona Gun Club had a good afternoon's sport yesterday. The following are the highest scores out of a possible 50: Pollard, 46; Baines, 44;
Fuller, 43; Smith, 40.

Health Officer Robert Turnbull makes the pleasing announcement today that there is not a case of influenza disease in the city, the last case having been removed this morning.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Hospital Aid Society will be held in the city council chamber on Monday, Aug. 5th, at 3 p.m. Members are kindly requested to be present.

Malcolm McIntyre left on this afternoon's train on his way to take up the duties of his office in Glasgow, Scotland. A large crowd were assembled at the depot to say good-bye and wish him God Speed on his journey and success in his new office.

George Wood, who went on a big drunk in honor of the settlement of the plasterers' strike, and was taken to the hospital in a state bordering on delirium tremens, threatened to jump out of the window. The attendants succeeded in hurling him away from the window by the use of holding up to his view a bottle of whiskey.

Mr. Joseph Macleannan, teacher of piano and elocution, is arranging to give lessons in Strathcona, and will be at Tipton's book store Wednesdays and Saturdays. As a pianist Mr.

Macleannan was a pupil of Antonine and Ducharme at Montreal, and studied elocution under T. C. Fox, B.E. of Philadelphia. He attended the Normal School in Ottawa and won the highest honors in music. He was for nearly four years organist of Notre Dame du Portage, and was the artist chosen to accompany the Scottish prima donna, Miss Crawford, on her Canadian tour last year.

There's a lacrosse match to-morrow night.

The picnic under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of St. Anthony's Church last night in Walter's grove was a pronounced success. The attendance was large and a most enjoyable evening was spent. The athletic events were closely contested, and the programme was a large and interesting one. The gold cushion was won by Harry McNeill. An excellent supper was served on the grounds.

T.R. Tipton has sold his stationery business and the store is closed today for stock taking. The purchasers are a number of local men, chief among whom are H. P. Soutenman and J. W. Blain.

The building was also included in the sale and the price was a good one.

The business has been conducted by Mr. Tipton for over a year and is a most prosperous one. "Tommy" will remain in the city and engage in some other line as soon as a good opening offers.

A great day in the history of Odd-fellowship in Strathcona was brought to a close last evening by a special meeting which was largely attended and unusually interesting.

Many visitors from other lodges were present and several of them were called upon to officiate in the degree work. The junior past grand's chair was occupied by Bro. Haakall, J.P.G.
of Friendship Lodge No. 9, Edmonton. Bro. A. E. Blackley, of Kingston, Ont., acted as noble grand and Bro. Chamberlain, N. G. of Friendship Lodge No. 7 officiated as vice grand. The other chairs were occupied by members of the local lodge.

Several of the prominent visitors
as well as the officials of the Strathcona lodge were called upon to speak and responded with instructive and enjoyable addresses. Uncle "Jimmy" Green was in charge of the refreshment department, which is a sufficient guarantee that none were sent away empty.

Lacrosse

The Big Game To-morrow

Every man in Strathcona should attend the lacrosse match to-morrow evening on the exhibition grounds, and take his wife, if he be a married man, or his best girl, if he has the misfortune to be a bachelor. The game between Strathcona and Calgary in the com-puncher city was attended by three thousand people. It is not expected that so many spectators can be accommodated, but a very good showing is possible and ought to be assured. The Calgary boys, it is said, are going to do things to the Edmonton team to-night.
We shall see to-morrow evening what they can do with the locals.

The Chalk Laundry.

"A rather man in evening dress and cotton hat soap indelicately, and when he and his wife stood up to leave the restaurant she gave an exclamation of dismay at the condition of the lower part of his shirt blouse. He looked completely abashed and, grabbing a napkin, began rubbing at the unsightly spots. Then the waiter butted in with his Swiss English:

"It does not in just one second get monstrous and madame will sit down."
He disappeared through the kitchen entry and in half a minute returned with a piece of chalk between his fingers—a plain, common, ordinary stick of chalk, such as the children use for blackboard work in school.

Then, stooping in front of the spotted dicer, he went over his shirt front, carefully chalking every spot until, at least at long range, the lines looked immaculate. The lady rewarded him with a smile and the man with something that looked like a quarter.—New York
